Notes	A Florida-based non-profit organization dedicated to combating family and relationship violence, sexual violence and child abuse. We are currently a 100% volunteer organization with an annual budget under $10,000. The organization was formed in 1996 and incorporated in 2001 by former victims of relationship and family violence for the purposes of assisting others to find resources, receive guidance, and enjoy the support and empathy of others who have "been there, done that". We went from victims to advocates - leaving our abusive situations and going on to run battered women's shelters or to work as police officers, 911 dispatchers, victim advocates, or counselors. While their major "port of call" and our "hands-on" efforts are concentrated in the Central Florida area, over time we developed this national-scope website in response to the many requests from victims, families, and professional agencies seeking assistance.

The Institute's culturally competent training for clergy and advocates emphasizes supporting the empowerment and leadership development of religious leaders in the historic Black church in prevention and response to domestic violence.

BCDVI's programs are designed to specifically and intentionally develop relationships among congregations and domestic violence agencies by garnering the support of clergy, advocates and law enforcement. By engaging churches, shelters and law enforcement in partnerships, battered women will not be forced to choose between their faith and their safety.

GCCA was formed as the result of a merger of Parents Anonymous of Georgia and the Georgia Chapter of the National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse. GCCA seeks to break the cycle of child abuse through a multifaceted set of goals that include increasing awareness and public responsiveness, developing professional resources, preventing child abuse, and supporting research and program evaluation. For instance, one of the most effective ways to prevent child abuse is to give parents hands-on help at the beginning of a child's life by offering support and guidance at the earliest possible point and continuing support over the child's early years. One of GCCA's programs consists of first steps that provide support for the stresses parents are under; other programs offer strategies for raising healthy children. A recent GCCA initiative to prevent child abuse is the development of a voluntary neonatal home visitation for high-risk families called Healthy Families Georgia.

Notes

Founded in 1983, Coastal Habitat for Humanity is the local affiliate of Habitat for Humanity International. It is a nonprofit, ecumenical Christian housing ministry. Our program is designed to make home ownership possible for low income families. These families cannot qualify for traditional loans, but demonstrate that they can repay a Habitat mortgage and are in urgent need of a safe, decent place to live.

Through volunteer labor and tax deductible donations of money and materials, Habitat homes are sold to partner families at no profit and are financed with affordable, no-interest loans. The homeowners' monthly mortgage payments help build homes for other families.

Habitat is not a give-away program. In addition to a 1% cash down payment and monthly mortgage payments, each homeowner family must invest 350 hours of their own labor - "sweat equity" - into building their own home and homes for others.

Notes

The Matthew Reardon Center is dedicated to the care and education of children with neurodevelopmental disabilities. Through partnerships with existing medical, educational, and community services, we provide special programs which enhance the quality of life for these children and their families. We rely on the support of like-minded citizens who share this goal.

The Center offers a comprehensive, multidisciplinary, team approach to the care of children affected by disorders of the brain during childhood. The objectives of the Center are to:

- Provide individualized educational services, ranging from advocacy for a child at his local school to an on-site school with teachers and staff who specialize in the education of children with disorders of the brain.
- Through advocacy and support groups, educate families on how they can make the most of existing community, medical and educational services.
- Educate the community about issues faced by children with brain disorders and their families.
- Provide respite care for the child so that parents and other care givers may get time away from the demands of care for the child.

Membership is open to all drug addicts, regardless of the particular drug or combination of drugs used. When adapting AA's First Step, the word "addiction" was substituted for "alcohol," thus removing drug-specific language and reflecting the "disease concept" of addiction.

There are no social, religious, economic, racial, ethnic, national, gender, or class-status membership restrictions. There are no dues or fees for membership; while most members regularly contribute small sums to help cover the expenses of meetings, such contributions are not mandatory.

The Social Security and Supplemental Security Income disability programs are the largest of several Federal programs that provide assistance to people with disabilities. While these two programs are different in many ways, both are administered by the Social Security Administration and only individuals who have a disability and meet medical criteria may qualify for benefits under either program.

Social Security Disability Insurance pays benefits to you and certain members of your family if you are "insured," meaning that you worked long enough and paid Social Security taxes.

Supplemental Security Income pays benefits based on financial need.

Special Olympics is an international organization dedicated to empowering individuals with intellectual disabilities to become physically fit, productive and respected members of society through sports training and competition. Special Olympics offers children and adults with intellectual disabilities year-round training and competition in 26 Olympic-type summer and winter sports. There is no charge to participate in Special Olympics.

Note that Special Olympics and the Paralympics are two separate and distinct organizations. Curious about the difference between the two?

Special Olympics currently serves more than 1.7 million persons with intellectual disabilities in more than 200 Programs in more than 150 countries. In 2000, Special Olympics made a bold commitment to reach 2 million athletes by the end of 2005, placing a renewed focus on building the movement's infrastructure and establishing tools to facilitate growth. An initial census of athlete participation conducted in that year established a baseline count of athletes worldwide.

The 2004 Special Olympics Athlete Participation Report — a "report card" of progress toward the goal of reaching 2 million athletes by 2005 — enables Special Olympics to better inform future strategies and plans throughout all regions. The 2003 census marks the first year the Movement can assess growth and participation trends over a three-year period.

Children and adults with intellectual disabilities who participate in Special Olympics develop improved physical fitness and motor skills, greater self-confidence and a more positive self-image. They grow mentally, socially and spiritually and, through their activities, exhibit boundless courage and enthusiasm, enjoy the rewards of friendship and ultimately discover not only new abilities and talents but "their voices" as well.

Notes

The Girl Scout organization was started in 1912 by Juliette Gordon Low to give girls the opportunity to experience a wide range of activities within the framework of a positive values-based movement. The mission of Girl Scouting is to inspire girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism, and service that they may become happy and resourceful citizens.

Effective Girl Scout program is a combination of Troop/Group program activities, Service Unit program events, and Council-wide events. Each has its place in meeting the needs of girls as they grow and develop.

Girl Scouting is one program, five age levels. All age levels share the foundation of Girl Scouting that is built on the Promise and Law. Both outline the code of moral conduct by which all Girl Scouts are intended to live. Both should always be a part of every Troop/Group meeting and their message woven into every activity.
